

THAILAND FESTIVAL TOURS!

'Loi Krathong' - the Festival of Lights

Tour departs
18 November 2007
9 days
Bangkok to Bangkok

"Loi Krathong" - the Festival of Lights - is one of Thailand's oldest and best preserved traditions. It is held on the full moon night of the twelfth lunar month, and throughout Thailand, hundreds of thousands of ornately decorated krathong or banana leaf floats carrying candles and incense sticks, are set adrift in rivers and waterways. In Sukothai province the festival also features a procession of offerings, sound and light show and firework display. This tour takes you not only to the festival in Sukothai, but also to Kanchanaburi, the Bridge over the River Kwai, Hell Fire Pass and the old capital of Siam, Ayutthaya. Also enjoy a cruise on a rice barge, and overnight on a floating jungle lodge.

Surin Elephant Round Up Festival

Tour departs 11 November 2007
9 days
Bangkok to Bangkok

Join us for the annual Elephant Round up - one of the most exciting spectacles of the year in Thailand. Surin, in the northeast of the country, known as the province of elephants, has long been associated with elephants. The people here are well known for their skills in rounding up wild elephants, training and taming them. Every year, more than one hundred elephants take part in the festival, displaying their grace, strength and intelligence in games of soccer, log carrying and tug-of-war, and the highlight of the festival, a dramatic mock battle. The festival tour also takes you to Kanchanburi and the Bridge over the River Kwai, to the old capital of Siam, Ayutthaya, and to Khaoyai National Park.
